

Southeastern

Southeastern has opened its new Southeast Louisiana Business Center, a one-stop-shop designed to enhance economic development efforts in the region. Located near the campus, the new center is home for the Southeastern Small Business Development Center, the Tangipahoa Economic Development Foundation, the Hammond Industrial Development Board and other organizations. The facility also provides valuable incubator space for area start-up businesses.

Southeastern

Southeastern continues to improve its campus environment through the construction of new classroom and laboratory facilities. Over the past several years, more than $80 million have been funneled into new construction and renovation projects at Southeastern. In August 2003, the university opened a new $6.8 million addition to its Teacher Education Center, and will open a new $12.8 million Biology Building in Spring 2004 (left).
