2013 - 2014 Highlights

- » The Honor Program at Southeastern Louisiana University is designed to provide participants with an excellent educational opportunity to learn about not only their chosen major, but also to learn the nature of intellectual inquiry and to study the important issues of our time and of all time.
- » The 2014 Phi Kappa Phi Outstanding Honors Student was awarded to Katelyn Robillard. Katelyn's senior theses dealt with how aging promotes morphological changes in resident brain cells of Macaques. This research was conducted under the direction of Dr. MacLean of the Tulane National Primate Research Center.

- » Thirteen Honors students presented their senior theses during the 2013-2014 year. The theses represent the breadth of interests of the Honors students: Management, English, Psychology, Engineering Technology, Communication Sciences and disorders, Athletic Train-ing, Supply Chain Management, Communication, and Biology. As always, the presentations and the written theses were all fine examples of high quality scholarship.
